See Chapter 3 for more on the layers found in the Channels palette. ## Using the Basic Tools You can perform basic operations to change, modify, and alter any digital image using the tools listed in Figure 4-6. You can also use the Apply Effects and Fill commands.

FIGURE 4-6: The Tools panel offers an array of digital tools. In Chapter 3, you explored the basics of layers, groups, and channels. Therefore, it would be a good idea to review that chapter before you get started. Here's how to use the Tools panel to create and crop your image: 1. **With your image open in Photoshop, choose Tools** ⇒ **Ruler.** 2. **With the ruler set to** 1/4 **inch, drag to divide the image into four, three, or two segments.** Use this method to create a border or a crop that you can then use to control aspects of your image, like saturation, contrast, color, and so on. 3. **Click the center of the ruler to set the crop origin, as shown in** **Figure** **4-7** **.** 4. **With the ruler anchored, click to set a precise corner on your image.** You can then crop out or add elements to this area to refine your image. (You're unlikely to use this method to zoom in or out to change the overall aspect of your image, however.) The Tools panel also offers the following tools. To apply an effect to a selection of an image, choose Adjustment** ⇒ **Adjustment** ⇒ **Invert. In the dialog box that appears, click the image layer to which you want to apply the effect. Then click OK and scroll to the upper-left corner of your window to see a preview of the effect. When you're done, press Enter. The Select tool is similar to the paint bucket in that it lets you select areas of an image that you can then modify, crop out, or add to your composition. To select an area on an image, press and hold the Ctrl key and click on an area to be selected. When you see the pointer change to crosshairs, you can move it around, click to add areas, and click again to remove selections. When you're done, press Enter or click the "x" in

Q: How to test for a specific String by comparing it with some other String? I want to test for a specific String using c# code. For example, I have an app that gets the name of a folder from the user. This is the code for doing so: List flist = new List(); String flistdir = String.Empty; String replace = Environment.GetFolderPath(Environment.SpecialFolder.ApplicationData); flist.Add(System.IO.Directory.GetParent(replace).Name.Replace("@", "").Replace("", "\")); flistdir = flist[0]; Now if the user types in the name and folder of a folder that does not exist, like: MyApp.exe My Folder, I want my code to return an error message something like "Folder not found". I don't know how to do this. Thanks.

A: In .NET 4.0 static bool TestFolderExists(string path) { return System.IO.Directory.Exists(path); }

Using System.IO.Directory.Exists will be the most efficient (it's a static method) and is officially recommended for this purpose.

Rice and his collaborators enlisted the help of scores of children in assembling a 32-foot scroll depicting the history and promise of the Dia de los Muertos celebration in Mexico.

celebrate the deceased. In 2010 a new generation of Mexican artists and designers joined Dia de los Muertos celebrations, bringing to life an eclectic array of festivities that had not been previously seen. For the Dia de los Muertos 2011 event that features art, music, film, workshops and more, the Moonrise Center for the Arts and the Dia de los Muertos planners are taking a look at some of the Mexican traditions and celebrating their influence on Day of the Dead: Art. The Dia de los Muertos celebration includes art, photography, animation and film. The earliest Dia de los Muertos ceremonies, which have been held in Mexico since ancient times, were a way to honor the ancestors and provide a place for the deceased to meet with the living. They occurred outside of Catholic cemeteries, after which the tradition was spread throughout the country. A contemporary Diwali festival in New Mexico, which has strong roots in Dia de los Muertos traditions, has similar themes. In 2011, the Moonrise Center for the Arts in downtown Newburyport features an exhibit by photographer Helen
